

WESTERN LIVESTOCK PRICE INSURANCE PROGRAM (WLPIP)

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS COVID-19

1 WHY HAS THE WLPIP-CALF DEADLINE BEEN EXTENDED?

A The deadline to purchase WLPIP-calf price insurance has been extended to June 18, 2020 in response to the ever-changing circumstances surrounding the COVID-19 pandemic. The extension gives producers an additional three weeks to monitor premiums and purchase calf price insurance policies. Livestock producers now have until June 18, 2020, to purchase calf price insurance policies. The extension gives producers nine additional purchasing days, as coverage options are published every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The extension only applies to this spring's purchasing period; all calf price insurance fall settlement dates remain the same.

2 DO I QUALIFY FOR THE WLPIP PREMIUM REDUCTION?

A The WLPIP premium rebate is for Saskatchewan WLPIP customers ONLY. Producers must file farm income/expense in Saskatchewan and be enrolled in WLPIP through SCIC. Saskatchewan producers inquiring about the temporary WLPIP premium reduction announced by the Saskatchewan Minister of Agriculture, please contact Saskatchewan Crop Insurance Corporation at 1.888.935.0000 for inquiries or visit the SCIC website at: scic.ca.

3 WHAT DOES COVID-19 HAVE TO DO WITH CATTLE PRICES?

A Initial reaction to COVID-19 negatively impacted beef sales due to its direct link to the food services industry. Cattle prices – like other stocks, investments and currency – fluctuate and have a financial impact on the Canadian economy. COVID-19 introduced an increase in volatility in cattle prices, due to the fear of the unknown.

4 WHY IS COVERAGE GOING DOWN?

A WLPIP is a market-driven program. This program reflects fluctuations in price, basis, currency and cattle futures. It helps protect producers from these fluctuations. A range of factors, including the Chicago Mercantile Exchange (CME), are monitored daily. When these future prices fluctuate, this may be reflected in coverage options.

5 WHY ARE PREMIUMS SO HIGH RIGHT NOW?

A One of the most important factors influencing premiums is volatility of the CME market. When cattle future prices are highly volatile, like they are now, WLPIP premiums will be more expensive. When the market is quiet and prices are relatively stable, premiums will be lower.
